The impressive new Broadblue Power500 has been engineered for performance and efficiency, with strong, lightweight, hydrodynamic hulls which give an exhilarating sailing performance, combined with significant fuel efficiency. In fact, the twin 265hp Volkswagen V6 TDI high speed direct injection turbocharged engines will take the Power500 to a cruise speed in excess of 20 knots, at an estimated consumption of 30lt per hour per engine - up to 50% less than a Monohull of equivalent size.

The Power500 is also a beautifully stable craft, able to provide both a smooth ride whilst at sea and to sit much more comfortably at anchor than a typical powerboat. She also has a hugely spacious and completely level saloon /galley with luxurious cabinetry and panoramic views, a vast master cabin with a king size bed, and an enormous flybridge with generous seating, bar facilities and a second helm.

Broadblue has been building world-class catamarans since 2001 and the New Power500 joins the existing three model Voyager sailboat range, and she is the first in a range of new high performance models.
